Diane Aceso Quest

Backstory

Features:

Diane, a resilient woman marked by age and life's trials, exudes grace with blonde hair and vibrant blue eyes. Weathered hands, a testament to diligent work, reveal her industrious past. Noteworthy burn marks adorn her neck, shoulder, and hip, while battle scars on her armor and subtle bruising tell tales of encounters endured. Despite these physical reminders, Diane maintains a sunny demeanor, embodying a spirit unbroken.

Clothing:

In her attire, Diane carefully blends identity and modesty. Crafted from leather and iron, battle-worn breastplate, shoulder pads, and gauntlets protect critical areas. Beneath, her clothing echoes the red and orange hues of her sun deity, with practical tan pants and simple boots. Over this, a snug vestment unfolds like a dress, adorned with golden outlines and the symbol of the sun. Her holy symbol (a linear sun) hangs from her neck, and a mace rests in a holster on her belt. She also carries a shield, a sun with an eye emblazoned across it.

Other:

Rooted in a rule-bound past, Diane's demeanor is straight-laced yet bright, shaped by a resilient and kind spirit. Despite neurotic tendencies and a mild apprehension towards fire, moments with holy relics or the company of Weary bring her ease. Weary's flirts and quips easily fluster and humor her, unveiling a lighter side to her realistic yet faithful personality, akin to her comforting bedside manner.

Summary:

Diane, a resilient and weathered individual, epitomizes grace with blonde hair, blue eyes, and a kind spirit, despite bearing physical marks from her life's trials. Her attire harmoniously blends practicality and modesty, featuring battle-worn armor adorned with symbols reflective of her deity's colors. Diane's upbringing in a rule-bound environment has shaped her straight-laced yet kind demeanor, characterized by a warm outlook. Weary Consistently Chaotic Oddball Quest

Backstory

Features:

Weary, a tiefling with regal purple skin, has dark blue hair that falls in loose waves around his head. Devoid of facial and body hair, his features are framed by thin curling horns that curl behind his ears. Despite an average build, his gentle demeanor is juxtaposed with signs of a well-lived adventure etched upon his form. Notably, his right hand and arm have metamorphosed into a deep red, extending across his right chest. A vivid contrast emerges in his eyes - a naturally blue left eye paired with a striking red right eye. The canvas of his body bears witness to various nicks and marks, each telling a tale of exploits navigated.

Clothing:

In the realm of attire, Weary orchestrates a symphony of style and practicality. A silver-white shirt finds kinship with a dark blue vest, casually unbuttoned at the top offering both style and comfort. A dark brown trench coat, with a distinctive split lower-back, accommodates his agile tail. Loose-fitting pants, mirroring the coat's hue, elegantly flow over his legs meeting his steadfast traveling shoes. Suspended from his neck is a familial pendant - a gold covered blood well l vial adorned with a decorated Q. Battle-worn stitching narrated tales on his attire, with subtle blue stitching on the left and red on the right. The coat itself bears minor tearing in the collar and sleeves.

Other:

Beyond the external, Weary radiates a captivating vibrancy. A counterpoint to his more serious wife, he embodies his ADHD, his gaze perpetually wandering in wonder. Proficient in the art of charisma, particularly with his beloved, he weaves a whimsical dance, often fidgeting or conjuring magic from his hands. His expressive tail, a silent envoy of his moods, instinctively seeks connection, subtly checking on those around him. Amidst his affable nature, an undercurrent of suspicion colors his interactions, rendering trust a rare commodity in encounters with new acquaintances.

Synopsis:

Weary, a tiefling with regal purple skin, combines a gentle demeanor with the vibrant marks of an adventurer etched upon his form, from the transformative red hues of his right hand and arm to the striking contrast in his eyes. His attire, a harmonious blend of style and practicality, tells its own tale through subtle stitching and signs of wear, notably in the trench coat with its distinctive split back. Weary, a wild magic sorcerer and free spirit, weaves magic in both his flirtatious interactions, especially with his more serious wife, and the playful fidgeting of his hands. His expressive tail, a silent dancer, mirrors moods and instinctively seeks connection. Yet, beneath his affability, a lingering suspicion shapes his interactions, a testament to the challenges of trust in the tapestry of his adventures.

Aceso Aid (AA) (Caravan Cart)

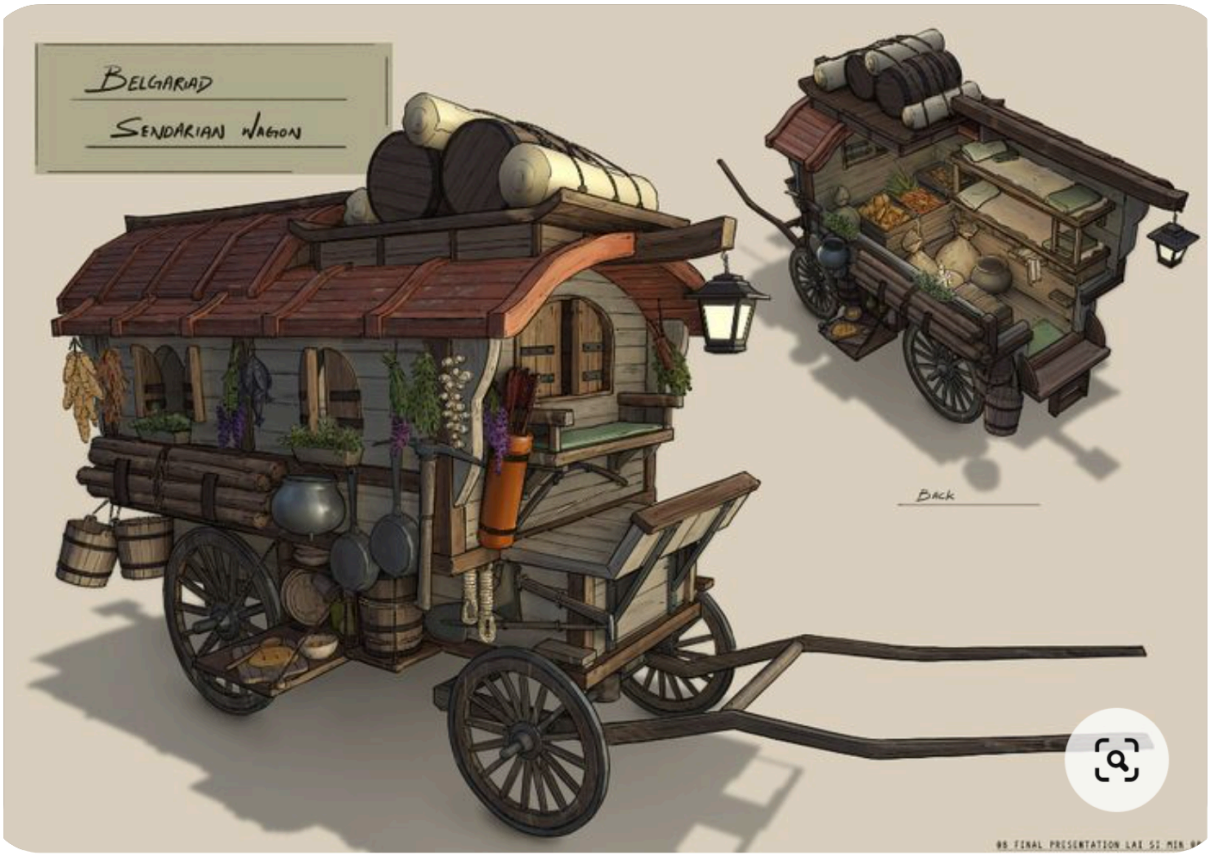

The carriage was reminiscent of a cottage on wheels. The back wheels are larger than the front wheels, made of strong brown wood. The frame is made of a similarly dark wood, the walls a faded white, and the roof a brick-like red. There are two windows on either side fitted with wooden shutters and hanging planters. A larger window sits at the elevated driver's seat and a matching door sits at the back with a raisable stepladder. A lantern hangs above the driver's seat and off the back. Pots, pans, buckets, and other utensils hang off the sides of the carriage, with a rack for firewood, some tents and bedrolls on the roof, and a fold out counter space for dining. Completing the cart is a sign stretching across the roof reading ACESO AIDE.

The interior is chaotic but cozy, adorned with warm red decor. In the center lies a worn shag carpet. At the bow, a pile of crates and sacks of foraged edibles sits under the wide driver's window. On the port side under the windows lies a tail-friendly couch, a blanket strewn over the back. To the left of the couch is a coat stand, and to the right is a shelf stocked with jars and souvenirs. On the starboard side is a bookshelf, stacked with books of varying sizes and some writing materials. Above that is a wall-mounted bunk bed, with plain but comfortable sheets.

Description: Sub-Kingdom in the Kingdom of Sirvana.

The Resurgence is led by his Holiest, the Great Prophet Saladin. This empire is another fanatic theocracy which believes all are damned to Hades, only those who lead lives of true satisfaction and god's will, will make it to Elysium. The line of fanatics ensue chaos and corruption within each of the other vassals. They are known for raising armies of lesser demons and devils with the help of some of the lesser known leaders of Hades. Truly one of the worst nations, and sadly they can get away with a lot since they produce much of the tradable resources in the kingdoms. They usually go to war with the allied nations of the Templars and Sun Home or the Dominion.
